

The odd-sites bucket list

Twenty strange websites to visit once. Tick them off.

1

Pointer Pointer: Wiggle your cursor and a stranger in a photo points right at it.

2

The Evolution of Trust: A playable explainer on why we trust each other, with game theory.

3

LOOPY: Draw a system, press play and watch it behave.

4

Parable of the Polygons: A playable post on how small biases build segregated societies.

5

The Wisdom and/or Madness of Crowds: A playable guide to how ideas and behaviour spread through crowds.

6

Adventures With Anxiety!: An interactive story about living with anxiety.

7

To Build a Better Ballot: An interactive guide to voting systems and why they matter.

8

How To Remember Anything Forever-ish: A comic-style interactive guide to spaced repetition.

9

Neal.fun: Neal Agarwal's playground of games, visualizations and weird stuff.

10

The Deep Sea: Scroll down through the ocean and meet what lives at every depth.

11

Spend Bill Gates' Money: Blow $100 billion on everything from Big Macs to an NBA team.

12

The Password Game: Pick a password under increasingly unhinged rules.

13

Infinite Craft: An endless crafting game that starts with Water, Fire, Wind and Earth.

14

Draw a Perfect Circle: Trace a circle and get scored on how perfect it is.

15

Absurd Trolley Problems: The trolley problem, escalated until it stops making sense.

16

Wonders of Street View: Funny buildings, strange costumes and other oddities caught by Google.

17

Size of Life: Scroll from an amoeba to a blue whale and feel tiny.

18

Space Elevator: Ride a virtual elevator through the atmosphere and into space.

19

Internet Roadtrip: A shared Street View road trip steered by everyone online at once.

20

Asteroid Launcher: Design an asteroid and fire it at any spot on Earth.